SERVICE DESCRIPTION

HOME STUDY ASSISTANCE AND ASSESSMENT REVIEW

Available services:

- education regarding the five types of home studies that are available and assistance in selecting the study that is the best suited and most economical for a couple's personal situation
- preparation for the home study, including education on purpose, process, requirements and expectations
- referral to home study organizations that serve the couple's geographic location
- advocacy and support through the home study process, as necessary
- consultation regarding concurrent planning – very useful for those who are open to several different options for building their family (in the event that one option does not produce the hoped-for results) and desire the quickest possible path to building a family of their own
- review of completed Home Study to ensure that assessment is current and meets NEDC preferred standards
